

Africa Rising:

Entrepreneurship & Investment Networks Propelling the Continent

Africa offers entrepreneurs the opportunity to fundamentally improve the lives of the communities they operate in. The financial and social value created by for-profit enterprises is arguably greater than in developed countries — as are the systemic challenges of doing business.

In partnership with the Global Entrepreneurship Summit and Stanford Seed, VLAB has assembled a panel of investors and entrepreneurs to discuss the growing entrepreneurship and investment networks that are allowing for impactful and scalable companies to take off in African marketplaces.

Spend the hour learning from the investors working to construct a sustainable entrepreneurship ecosystem in different African marketplaces and then hear from a few of the African companies attending GES as they share their stories and discuss their needs and challenges with the panel.

All seating for this event is general admission.
